

Gary Cowen KC Called 1990 Silk 2020

Practice Summary

Gary is an experienced advocate at appellate and first instance levels in all aspects of real property law with particular emphasis on complex issues arising from commercial development, especially adverse possession, restrictive covenants and easements. Gary also specialises in complex mortgage disputes, leasehold enfranchisement and commonhold work. Most recently, he has appeared in two high-profile restrictive covenant cases concerning property at Falmouth Docks and in Berkeley Square.

Gary's recent High Court work includes cases concerning the surrender of leasehold interests without the consent of a mortgagee, the extent to which a landlord can insist upon a topping up of a rent deposit upon tenant administration to cover rent losses flowing from dilapidations and whether premises demised included the airspace required to construct an extra storey on a block of flats.
