

Martin Dray Called 1992

Practice Summary

Martin specialises in all aspects of real property law. He has particular experience and expertise in relation to: adverse possession; conveyancing; land registration issues such as priorities and alteration of the register of title; options (to break, renew and purchase) and rights of pre-emption; easements; restrictive covenants; development and overage agreements; landlord and tenant; 1954 Act business lease renewals; 1967 Act and 1993 Act leasehold enfranchisement. He frequently advises on the interpretation and rectification of contractual documents.

Martin is ranked in Chambers and Partners and The Legal 500 as a leading junior in property litigation. Published comments include: "He's a brilliant lawyer – but he's also very funny and charming"; "A first-choice junior"; "provides excellent advice" and "a talented advocate" who is "incredibly persuasive".

Martin prides himself on being commercially minded and giving clients practical advice, and on being accessible and a team-player. The legal press records that he "is excellent to work with, "approachable", "enthusiastic", "extremely user friendly", "has a good grasp of the commercial context" and "quickly appreciates the key issues from a client's perspective".

Martin is equally at home with both advisory and litigation work. He appears in courts, tribunals and arbitrations and at mediations. He has a noted "specialism in high-profile property cases". He has acted in several leading cases, including: Pye v Graham – the key House of Lords' decision - and Topplan v Townley on adverse possession; Macepark v Sargeant on easements; Martin v Maryland on service charges.

Not confining himself to British bricks and mortar, Martin is happy to advise in relation to property cases overseas. Recent instructions have centred on properties in Gibraltar, Barbados, and the Turks and Caicos Islands.

In addition to his practice at the Bar, Martin sees cases from 'the other side of the fence' in his roles as a Deputy Chancery Master and a Deputy District Judge. He is also a Judge of the First-tier Tribunal (Property Chamber), deciding property cases referred by HM Land Registry.

Martin's dispute resolution experience extends to arbitration and expert determination too. He is a Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators and a member of Falcon Chambers Arbitration. He has often been appointed as arbitrator or expert to adjudicate on disputes (both on the papers and after a hearing). He has acted as legal assessor appointed by an arbitrator.

Amongst other legal writing, Martin has found the time to co-edit the last three editions of Barnsley's Land Options, the leading work for practitioners on the subject. He has co-authored The Law and Practice of Charging Orders of Land and is a former contributor to Fisher & Lightwood's Law of Mortgage.
