Practice Summary

Caroline Shea QC is listed as a leading silk for both Real Estate Litigation and Agriculture and Rural Affairs in both the Legal 500 and Chambers UK Guide. She is described by her clients as “clever, very forthright and commercial”, “extremely client focused ... always makes time to deal with urgent matters”, “an iron fist in a velvet glove”, “decisive, technically impressive and pugnacious in the courtroom” and “excellent in her written work and flawless in court”. She has been nominated for the Legal 500 Real Estate Silk of the Year 2019. Known for robust court craft, she is solution focussed from the outset, deploying her legal and tactical skills to arrive at the optimum solution.

Caroline accepts instructions to litigate, advise in and arbitrate all aspects of real property and landlord and tenant practice, in commercial, residential and agricultural disputes. She has particular expertise in proprietary estoppel claims; development agreements; easements/restrictive covenants; forfeiture/relief; and high value commercial and agricultural rent reviews/lease renewals.

Caroline writes for a wide range of specialist publications, appears frequently on the lecture circuit, and is co-author of the latest (2018) edition of Muir, Watt and Moss, a leading practitioners’ text on the law of agricultural holdings.

Recent instructions include:

- acting for a major landowner forfeiting retail premises, resisting the tenant’s application for relief;
- defending a proprietary estoppel claim brought against the owner of an extensive portfolio of residential property;
- advising a developer on resisting injunctive relief brought by the owner of rights over development land;

- a claim against solicitors for failing to register an option, involving complex questions of causation and quantum;
- advising leading pubs company on the effects of the new Pubs Codes, including seeking judicial review of the Pubs Codes Adjudicator's decisions and statements;
- advising a retail park owner resisting injunctive relief sought by tenants seeking to prevent improvement works to the retained parts ;
- representing two commercial/agricultural siblings in a complex trusts claim brought by a third sibling in respect of substantial commercial/agricultural family trusts;
- advising a landlord on an agricultural succession claim involving two potential applicants;
- advising a high profile commercial tenant facing nuisance committed by the landlord redeveloping retained property;
- advising agricultural tenants with HS2 rights on a misrepresentation claim.

Caroline is a Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators, and has been appointed in disputes involving both agricultural and general property law.
